Live Edge Slabs AMARGO AMARGO

Species: AMARGO AMARGO

Scientific Name: Vatairea lundellii

Common Names: Bitter Angelim, Mora (Nicaragua, Costa Rica), Amargoso (Honduras), Angelim, Faveira (Brazil), Caralillo, Bitterwood, Amargo (Panama), Danto, Ramon (Guatemala)

Janka Rating: 1,420

Specific Gravity: 0.55

Typical Trunk Diameter: 3' to 6'

Appearance: When freshly cut, its grain is creamy yellow that turns into 'teak brown'.

Special Characteristics: Because it is durable and stable as well as very attractive, Amargo is used for a variety of purposes from furniture to interior and exterior construction.

Uses: A very durable tropical hardwood. High natural resistance to termites and rotting. Its grain responds to preservative treatments well, making it a preferable choice for exterior construction. ie. Furniture, doors, windows, structural components (interior and exterior), joinery, decking, railroad crossties, veneers, paneling, cabinetry.

Working Properties: Whether machining or working by hand, Amargo is a highly workable hardwood that responds well to gluing and use of fasteners. Using sharp cutting tools for planing, chiseling, turning, etc. will ensure results of a high caliber.

Underwater Logging Panama: Beere Timber Company is excited to announce we now have container loads of rare live edge slabs of hardwood imported from Panama. Whether you're looking for material for your next deck or you're looking for a unique one of a kind live edge slab for a table top, these amazing pieces of ancient hardwood were preserved in the underwater jungles of Panama since 1979 before a historical eco joint venture between Coast Eco Timber and the 14 comarcas of the Kuna Madugandi Tribe sustainably harvested these beautiful species and landed them here at Beere Timber.
